Get ready: SEPTA fare hikes to begin Monday

Increases. Among the changes, the base cash fare will increase for the first time in 12 years.

SEPTA riders, beware: Big changes are coming.

Starting July 1, fares will increase for the first time since July 2010.

Gender stickers will also be eliminated on all transit passes.

And weekly and monthly Transpasses and Trailpasses will now have ride limits. Weekly passes will allow 56 trips, and monthly passes, 240.

These changes come as SEPTA prepares a complete overhaul of its payment system in 2014.

Fares will go up again in July 2014 when SEPTA installs its new $200 million smart-card system, known as the New Payment Technology system. It will replace the current system.

Under that new system, tokens will be eliminated, and fares will increase another 25 cents.

Also in 2014, vending machines will dot bus and subway stations and will sell refillable, SEPTA-branded cards. The cards will replace weekly and monthly transit passes, tokens and paper transfers.

Riders next year can pay their fares just by tapping a smartphone or smart-chip-embedded credit or debit card on a turnstile equipped with an electronic reader. The fare will be withdrawn from a bank or other account. The machines will start popping up as soon as this summer for testing.

Monday's hikes are expected to generate about $25 million, officials said.

By the numbers

$2.25
Cash fares for subways, buses and trolleys will increase from $2 to $2.25 July 1.

$1.80
Tokens will increase from $1.55 to $1.80 July 1.

$24
Weekly Transpasses, which are for subways, trolleys and buses, will increase from $22 to $24.

$91
Monthly Transpasses, which are for subways, trolleys and buses, will increase from $83 to $91.

Other changes

- Suburban: Extra charges eliminated on bus routes: 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 99, 104, 105, 106, 107, 111, 113, 114, 115, 119, 120, 127, 128, 129, 130, 139
- Four bus routes: 123, 124, 125, 150 are now a one-time cash fare of $3.75
- The Norristown High Speed Line now has a single cash fare of $2.75.
- Regional Rail: Zone 5 will be folded into Zone 4. Zone 1 will include Eastwick, North Broad Street and North Philadelphia stations. Some Zone 4 stops were added to Zone 3.
- The all-transit Independence one-day pass increases from $11 to $12. The family pass goes from $28 to $29.
- Convenience one-day passes, which can be used on subways, trolleys and buses, but not regional rail, will go from $7 to $8.
- Extra charges are eliminated on these five city-bus routes: 14, 20, 44, 52, 55.

Local tweet

State issues fentanyl warning

The Pennsylvania Department of Drug and Alcohol Programs on Thursday issued a warning about the powerful narcotic painkiller fentanyl and derivative acetyl fentanyl after receiving reports of 50 fatal overdoses across the state this year.

Authorities said fentanyl, a prescription medication used to relieve severe or chronic pain, often has the same consistency, color and packaging of heroin. But fentanyl is much more potent, and drug users who mistake it for heroin are at a high risk of suffering overdoses. Fatalities have been confirmed in 15 counties, including Philadelphia. METRO

Diagnosed. Former Phillie Daulton says he has brain tumors

Former Phillies catcher and 97.5 The Fanatic show host revealed Thursday he's been diagnosed with two brain tumors.

In an online statement, The Fanatic said Darren Daulton, 59, is scheduled for surgery early next week.

"Our thoughts and prayers are with him and his family at this difficult time," they added.

Daulton played with the Phillies — first in 1983, then from 1985 to 1997. He finished his baseball career with the Florida Marlins in 1997, where he earned a World Series ring.

He's had a Fanatic show since 2010.

An Ironpigs freebie you'll (have to) die for

Affairs in order. One lucky fan with the best 200-word essay will win a free funeral.

Anyone can give out a bobble head, but it takes a ball club to give away a funeral.

The Lehigh Valley IronPigs, the Allentown-based Triple A affiliate of the Phillies, will offer one lucky fan the burial of their dreams.

Reichel Funeral Home, based outside of Bethlehem, is sponsoring the giveaway at the park's "Celebration of Life" night on Aug. 20 at Coca-Cola Park. To become eligible for the grand prize, any fan can submit an essay detailing their ideal funeral.

Kevin Reichel, funeral home owner, said he won't be bringing a hearse.

"This is going to be respectful," he said.

All of the services are guaranteed, Reichel said. If his business were to fold in the future before services are necessary, the family will still receive their prize.

Reichel said that he and the team are looking for someone who deserves a little help.

"There could be a family that is extremely distraught presently, and having this provided would be beneficial to them."

Arrangements

The funeral, worth about $10,000, includes:

- A casket, body removal, embalming or cremation, hearse, funeral services, wake or viewing.
- A donated headstone worth $1,500.
- Richmar Florist donated a $300 casket bouquet.
- The winner will be announced before the concessions stop serving beer on Aug. 20.

Two shootings happen on same block, one dead

Police are investigating two shootings within a few blocks and hours of each other on Germantown Avenue in North Philadelphia, including one Wednesday night that killed a teen.

Police say Tracy Briscoe, 19, of the 2900 block of North 12th Street, was shot in the head about 8:50 p.m. Wednesday on the 3000 block of Germantown Avenue.

Briscoe was pronounced dead about an hour later at Temple University Hospital.

Police responded to the corner of Germantown Avenue and West Indiana Street about 12:19 a.m. Thursday on a report of gunfire. They found a 38-year-old man down from a gunshot wound to his stomach. The victim was taken to Temple University Hospital, where he was last listed in critical condition. METRO

Officials: Standards for demolition should be improved

Probe. Industry experts spoke before a Council committee at the second of four hearings into the June 5 collapse.

A City Council committee on Thursday held the second in a series of investigative hearings reviewing city demolition practices in the wake of the fatal building collapse.

While the first meeting largely featured testimony from city officials, Council members on Thursday heard from industry leaders who are experts in demolition and construction.

One of the central issues discussed was that while there are strict standards in place for demolition on city-owned properties and those undertaken by union firms, the requirements for privately contracted demolition projects are lax.

"The sobering fact is that we do not have ensconced in any kind of ordinance at all, or permitting process, a protocol for demolition," said Philadelphia Building and Construction Trade Council business manager Pat Gillespie. "Then you peel back the curtain, and we have an awful lot of licensing requirements that have a total lack of enforcement — no one enforces things."

Representatives urged the city to create a single set of standards to apply to both private and public sector demolitions.

Suggested actions

Those testifying recommended all demolition and construction workers at both private and public sector job sites should:

- Receive training to develop skills and recognize hazards
- Adhere to OSHA standards
- Be required to undergo random drug screenings
- Have recourse to bring forth site safety concerns without fear of losing their jobs

Report: Philly area bridges bad for bikes, pedestrians

Transit. Most area bridges are not accessible by bike or foot, according to a new study.

The Bicycle Coalition of Greater Philadelphia released an analysis of bicycle and pedestrian access to area bridges spanning the Delaware River.

The report, "Crossover: Bridge Ahead Impassable," found only five of 12 bridges studied were open to bicyclists or pedestrians, stunting burgeoning transit networks in Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

"Municipalities on both sides of the river are investing heavily in better and safer bicycle and pedestrian infrastructure," Bicycle Coalition Research Director John Boyle said in a statement. "But the benefits of these networks are stymied by bridges, which, somewhat ironically, serve as barriers to connection."

Ben Franklin Bridge is the only bridge bicyclists are allowed to ride across, rather than walk their bikes to get over. / PAIGE OZAROSKI, METRO

Recommendations

Bridges should be retrofitted to accommodate bicyclists and pedestrians during major rehab projects.

- Transit agencies, police departments and taxis should collaborate to give reliable transportation services over bridges where bikes aren't allowed.
- All bridges open to bicycles should connect on either side with bike lanes, sidewalks and major trails.

Of the five bridges where cyclists are allowed, access is further limited. The Ben Franklin is the only bridge bicyclists can ride across, rather than walk their bikes over. Still, the report notes that bridge lacks directional signage, has no plan for snow removal, doesn't have a clear method for riders to connect to bike lanes on the Pennsylvania or New Jersey side, and is only open to pedestrians and cyclists during the day.

"Traveling from Pennsylvania to New Jersey should not require immediate automobile access, especially when communities on both sides of the river are seeking to facilitate cross-river access to drive economic activity," Boyle said.

Marriage equality bills floated

State Reps. Brian Sims and Steve McCarter announced Thursday plans to introduce a bill in the House of Representatives recognizing same-sex marriages in Pennsylvania, which now explicitly prohibits such unions.

"After Wednesday's decisions by the U.S. Supreme Court, it is past time for Pennsylvania to join the 12 states — soon to be 13 because of California — and the District of Columbia that already provide this basic measure of equality and dignity to their residents," Sims said in a statement.

The bill will include protections for religious organizations that do not wish to sanction or recognize same-sex marriages. METRO

Espionage. Obama not willing to make deals to get Snowden

President Obama said he would not start "wheeling and dealing" with China and Russia over a U.S. request to extradite former American spy agency contractor Edward Snowden.

Obama also dismissed suggestions the United States might try to intercept Snowden if he were allowed to depart Moscow by air.

"No, I'm not going to be scrambling jets to get a 29-year-old hacker," he told a news conference in Dakar. Snowden turned 30 last week.

Obama said regular legal channels should suffice to handle the request that Snowden, who left Hong Kong for Moscow, be returned.

Obama said he had not yet spoken to Chinese President Xi Jinping or Russian President Vladimir Putin on the issue. REUTERS

US suspending trade benefits for Bangladesh

The United States is suspending long-time trade benefits for Bangladesh until the country makes progress on poor workers' safety conditions that have cost more than 1,200 lives in the garment sector in the past year, the White House said on June 27.

Some gay couples now due to receive 'Obamacare' benefits

Health. The Affordable Care Act establishes exchanges so people can explore all their health coverage options in one place.

The Supreme Court's ruling that same-sex couples are eligible for federal benefits will mean more gays and lesbians can reap the benefits of President Barack Obama's health care overhaul that take effect January 1, advocates say.

The Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act already bans discrimination in health coverage based on sexual orientation or gender identity. The law, known as "Obamacare," was passed in 2010 and upheld by the Supreme Court.

With the Supreme Court decision, same-sex couples who live in states that recognize them can apply for the law's tax subsidies, meant to offset health care costs, as a couple rather than as two individuals, said Tim Jost, a health law expert and law professor at Washington and Lee University. This will help the law reach more people, he added.

Some couples will be newly eligible for spousal protections under Medicaid, a federally funded program that provides care to low-income parents, children, seniors and people with disabilities.

If couples decide to file taxes jointly, they may no longer qualify for Medicaid or tax credits because their combined income may put them above the level for eligibility. REUTERS

The Supreme Court ruling will also enable older same-sex couples to receive marital benefits under Social Security and Medicare, Services and Advocacy for GLBT Elders said in a statement. / BESS ADLER,METRO

Cases rejected

Supreme Court declines to take up two more gay rights cases

A day after deciding two major cases on gay marriage, the U.S. Supreme Court declined on June 27 to take up two cases on the issue of gay rights.

The cases concerned Nevada's ban on same-sex marriage, and an Arizona law that denies state benefits to domestic partners.

The court, which rejects the vast majority of cases that come before it, declined to hear the cases without comment.

The action means an appeals court ruling striking down the Arizona law stays in effect, while litigation over the Nevada law will continue. REUTERS

The new blueprint for big album releases

BLIPP THIS

Trend. David Bowie, Boards of Canada, Daft Punk, Kanye West and now Jay-Z are revolutionizing the way musicians release their work. It's called the sneak attack!

Download the Blippar app now!
Download and open the Blippar app on your smartphone and hold the screen over the "Yeezus" CD to see some alternate cover ideas.
blippar.com

When Jay-Z put out "The Blueprint 3" in September 2009, most of his fans had known about its arrival for the better part of a year. And in the months leading up to the release, the rapper gradually shared the title, track list, artwork and names of guests to slowly and steadily amp up expectations for the release.

Four years later and Jay-Z is using a totally different blueprint. Earlier this month, during the fifth game of the NBA Finals, he appeared in a commercial promoting "Magna Carta Holy Grail," a brand new album that fans were hearing about for the first time, scheduled for release on the Fourth of July, less than a month after the announcement.

"The Internet is like the wild west," he says at one point during the three-minute spot. "We need to write the new rules."

He is just one of a growing number of major artists this year writing these new rules. In January, David Bowie broke a decade of musical silence with a cryptic video that appeared on YouTube on midnight of his 66th birthday. Then, in March he released "The Next Day," a full-length album that reportedly not even all of the top brass at his publicity company knew about until just days before its arrival. And Kanye West only made fans aware of last week's release, "Yeezus," when he tweeted about it at the beginning of May. What these albums share is secret hard work behind the scenes, with a rushed approach and artwork that appears to just be dashed off the night before. Bowie's album cover is just a white square covering the album jacket for his 1977 album, "Heroes." West's album cover is just a picture of a compact disc with a piece of red duct tape on the case.

"To be able to announce, 'This is now,' I see it as part of music marketing today that is on crack cocaine," says music industry veteran and author of the upcoming book, "The Artist's Guide to Success in the Music Business," Loren Weisman. "Because if you're telling me it's coming in six months, I don't want to hear it."

Steve Knopper, a contributing editor for Rolling Stone, and the author of "Appetite for Self-Destruction: The Spectacular Crash of the Record Industry in the Digital Age," says perhaps the music business has almost come to a place of acceptance with today's consumer culture.

"In the record industry this wasn't really possible before," he says. "Ten or 15 years ago it wasn't possible at all technology-wise, because they couldn't rush out an album that quickly. And then, up until the last few years, nobody wanted to do it even if they could because they were so scared of the Internet. ... 'If we release something too quickly and we don't have the whole thing completely under control then people are going to pirate this!' But now it seems like no one cares. It's like, 'I have an album! Let's just get it out!'"

In the commercial for "Magna Carta Holy Grail," Jay-Z shares his marketing strategy, and it doesn't sound much more complicated than the last clause that Knopper outlined.

"The idea is to really finish the album and drop it," he says, "giving it to the world at one time and letting them share it."

Sneak attack pioneer

Girl Talk industry talk

This sneak attack approach isn't exactly brand new. Mash-up artist Gregg Gillis built up a big word-of-mouth following with the 2006 Girl Talk album, "Night Ripper." For the two Girl Talk albums that followed — 2008's "Feed the Animals" and 2010's "All Day" — he just quietly leaked them online and watched the reaction spread across the worldwide web like wildfire.

"Everyone gets to hear it at the same time, before reading any reviews or forming any opinions," says Gillis. "I think it's worked out great for me in the past, but for future releases, I have been actively thinking about giving it some short advance notice. Doing it in a strategic way can be helpful for giving it proper context."

So does that mean we can expect a new sneak attack from Girl Talk soon? If we told you, it wouldn't really be a sneak attack, would it?

Advanced marketing for superstars

The fans: Your 'absolute best ambassadors'

Mike King, a former product manager at Rykodisc, who teaches music marketing courses at Berklee College of Music, says the sneak attack approach is not just due to the instant gratification of the Internet. It's also the personal nature of social media.

"If you look at the things that labels used to use to market music, like commercial radio and MTV, all of these places that labels used to spend their way into don't exist, but what does exist are these communities of hardcore fans," he says. "If you sneak it out to those people, they will be your absolute best ambassadors."

ADAM DURITZ

Counting Crows have been "Round Here" for a while, but singer Adam Duritz is focusing on the future.

TIME AND TIME AGAIN

Fair warning: This will probably make you feel old. Counting Crows' debut album, "August and Everything After," was released 20 years ago. Crazy, right? The anniversary has also snuck up on Counting Crows frontman Adam Duritz, who says there are no plans to cash in on the milestone. Instead, the band is looking forward and embarking on a summer tour across the U.S. with fellow '90s stalwarts the Wallflowers.

I can't believe it's been 20 years since "August and Everything After" came out.
For me it doesn't really seem like that either. I would probably not think about it being 20 years at all except that people keep saying it to me. I don't really look at it any differently than I do the other albums. It happened to sell a lot more, but that didn't have much to do with me. The job that we were going to do on the album was done long before anybody bought 10 million copies of it.

What sticks out in your memory of making that album?
It was a difficult album to make. It's sort of where I took over the band, and because I was very lame at being a band- leader back then, that made it really hard on the other guys — because I didn't take over the band in the best way, and that made life really hard on everyone while we were making that record. Since then we've done a lot of years on buses and a lot of tours and made a lot of records I really love.

Any plans to celebrate the anniversary?
I'm waiting for something more significant, some sort of trumpet fanfare to make me realize it's been 20 years since that record came out. That really hasn't happened, possibly partially because we didn't do anything to mark it. We did a deluxe album years ago and we did the live album, which was just all of "August and Everything After" played live, a couple of years ago, so there isn't really anything left to do other than make another 20-year release to get people's money for it. But we're not going to do that.

You guys were early adopters in using social media to connect with your fans.
I remember right when I moved to Los Angeles after we finished touring on "August and Everything After" — like 1995 — I realized at some point in there that AOL had forums for all these different bands, like message boards, and there were people on there on the Counting Crows board just talking about our music. So I went on it and told people who I was — it took a little while to convince people — and my thought was, "Here's a way to talk directly to your fan base. You don't have to go through radio, you don't have to go through print." I mean, all of those are useful, but it's kind of useful to be able to go yourself, too. I mean, it was social media in a way before there was social media. It never hurts to be able to go directly to people. It's necessary now, especially if you're going to be independent.

The cycle of life and death as 'your peak,' as told through dance

Watch for intricate hand movements in the Three Aksha performance. / THREE AKSHA

What the world needs now is a little hope.

Enter Viji Rao and her classical Indian Three Aksha Dance Ensemble. Their performance of Bharatanatyam pieces June 28 and 29 at the Painted Bride Arts Center on Vine Street is all about accentuating the positive.

"The one thing that's close to my heart is that it's all about peace," Rao says. "There are so many things going on right now with the environment and bombings, I just wanted to bring a lot of peace. I just wanted to talk about life as a cycle. There's no need to fight for everything in life — it's all there. It's just up to us to enjoy it."

One of the works performed by Three Aksha will be the Pushkara, which illustrates the Hindu philosophy of life being a temporary part of a cycle.

"Everybody talks about birth or death, but people don't talk about rebirth," Rao says. "In Hindu mythology, the death means you're reaching toward your peak. Fortunately, or unfortunately, they believe there's a rebirth and you come back as a reincarnation of something, or you come back as a human and you do that seven times."

Rao is a native of India who danced and choreographed professionally in the United Kingdom. She founded Three Aksha, based at Girard College, in 2003.

The face and hands are emphasized in Indian classical dance.

"The hand gestures and the facial expressions are based on the temple statues and sculptures you see in southern or northern India," she says.

The company started out with a handful of followers and now has more than 12,000 in its database, Rao says. Each performance is preceded by an explanatory introduction so audience members can more easily follow along.

Rebirth is a theme of the dance. / THREE AKSHA

In Philadelphia, "the Indian parents want their children to know about their culture and heritage, so they bring their kids to the shows," Rao says.

Non-Indians, she adds, "are looking for something new and different, and that's where Three Aksha comes in."

Paul Feig, who directed "Bridesmaids," also helmed the female-driven "The Heat." / GETTY IMAGES

PAUL FEIG

The "Bridesmaids" director laments being the only one making studio films starring women this summer.

NOT A FREAK, SORT OF A GEEK

Paul Feig may have co-created the beloved "Freaks and Geeks" with Judd Apatow. But it wasn't until he directed "Bridesmaids" that something he made himself was a success right off the bat. He started out as an actor (and he still puts in appearances), but gradually slipped behind the camera, where he's directed lots of TV (including "The Office," "30 Rock" and "Arrested Development"). His fourth film, "The Heat," reunites him with Melissa McCarthy, who pairs with Sandra Bullock for the only major movie this summer starring women.

What's it like directing comedy instead of performing it?
I love it, because for me, as an actor, I had my thing that I was good at, but I didn't have the range where I could do everything. Whereas with directing, I get to do that, because it's all about the people I hire. There are projects I have no business doing, but if you get the right people you figure it out. For me, the fun is finding the right people.

Q&A

You still shoot on film, not video, correct?
Yes. On television, all I work with is HD. But with movies — I'm not a luddite, I just like film. It's very friendly to my actors in a way that HD isn't. There's a quality. I see a difference — I'm sure no one else does. I like grain. With this movie, I wanted it to feel like an old '80s cop movie. We shoot about 12½ minutes per load, and with HD you can roll for an hour straight. I want those built-in breaks. Otherwise I'd get off schedule, and I'd wear out my actors. It keeps everybody on their toes. When film is going through a camera, it's much different than when HD is just lumbering along on this tape.

through as a director.
That's what I like about movie directing. With television, which I love doing, you're a bit more of a facilitator. Whereas with movies you are the storyteller. Obviously you have writers and you're nothing without them. But you're the one who says, "This is how it has to be." A cinematographer once told me about a star who directed something, and I asked, "How'd it turn out?" And he said, "Well, they did a good job but they had a bad script, so it didn't work out." As a director you can't fall back on, "Well, I had a bad script." It's your job to make that script not bad.

Did Sandra Bullock have trouble adjusting to this improv style of comedy, which she doesn't usually do?
She's the first to admit she was a little thrown the first couple days, at how loose we play. Then she really snapped into it. When I'm getting these worlds together, I do rehearsals with the actors very early on. I want the actor to fit their character so well that they can just become that character. Then it's not improv, it's just talking like that character.

"Bridesmaids" was supposed to start a rash of studio films starring women. But "The Heat" is one of the very few.
I'm sad there's not more. But my first concern after "Bridesmaids" was there would be an onslaught of movies starring women that weren't really good and were just trying to be outrageous. But what happened is it went the other way: Nothing's happening. It's us, and the indie world is doing this, with "The Bling Ring" and "The To Do List" and "Bachelorette." We're the only movie this summer from a studio with women in the lead role. I don't' know what the hang-up is, but I wish they'd get going. I don't want it to be that everybody waits for me to do it.

Channing Tatum is seen in a rare fully clothed moment in "White House Down." / REINER BAJO

Commander in crazy

Presidential thriller. The other "Die Hard in the White House" movie goes the nutty route.

In "White House Down," the second presidential "Die Hard"-esque jaunt in the last four months, POTUS is James Sawyer, a liberal trying to establish peace in the Middle East. He's a Lincolnian who talks about feeding the hungry and covertly chomps down on Nicorette. He's also played by an Oscar winner (Jamie Foxx). Not since Harrison Ford thwarted Russian hijackers on Clinton's watch in "Air Force One" has a sitting prez been treated so nobly by the movies.

The baddies, who take over the White House, are the president's critics: Militia-men types, far-right talk radio fans, old bigots. (Their ringleader is 66-year-old James Woods.) But Sawyer's not the hero. As in "Olympus Has Fallen," that role goes to a would-be Secret Service star, here played by a tank-topped Channing Tatum and named John Cale.

That he shares a name with the Velvet Underground member is not the silliest thing in the film. Things start out in classically clean action movie form, with John Cale, an ex-soldier out to prove his mettle, rescuing Sawyer but still trapped inside the world's most protected house. Around the time of a surreal and protracted car chase around the modest confines of the White House lawn, complete with rocket launchers, logic goes out the window.

Say what you will about "Olympus Has Fallen," but it was relatively lean and tried to make sense (kind of). This one, only "Independence Day" director Roland Emmerich's third time messing up the White House, is the crazier, nuttier cousin — the "Armageddon" to its "Deep Impact." It conforms to modern blockbuster language by losing itself to insane, inexplicable spectacle. Given the reckless way they act, our heroes (and screenwriter James Vanderbilt) often seem to forget about all the hostages, including John Cale's young, persnickety daughter (Joey King).

This is dumb cinema writ in the largest letters possible. No one's taking it seriously, and everyone seems to be having a good time. Tatum may be built out of bricks, but he's become increasingly goofy; note that he was last seen as Danny McBride's gimp in "This Is the End." He's yet another John McClane, but he's no superhero. Even as Tatum gets dirtier and less clothed, he keeps undercutting the stock heroics by tossing off lines and amping up his bumbling behavior. He saves the day and the movie.

The only summer movie starring women

See more at www.metro.us

Review

'The Heat'

Director. Paul Feig

Stars. Sandra Bullock, Melissa McCarthy

Rating. R

Buddy comedy. Sandra Bullock enters the world of competitive improv comedy with "The Heat."

Two years ago, "Bridesmaids" reminded Hollywood that there existed a certain neglected demographic: women. Studios acted fast — or waited ages to hire the man who directed "Bridesmaids" to handle the only major release this summer movie season to star girls. It's almost not worth noting that however affable "Bridesmaids" was, it had problems — chief among them a token gross-out set piece that ended with Maya Rudolph pooping in a street gutter.

"The Heat," which teams Sandra Bullock with Melissa McCarthy, features no such nadir, and the closest it comes to a disgusting, unnecessary showstopper — featuring a Heimlech case gone horribly awry — is rather inspired. It's also more ambitious: It's an action comedy (or, really, a comedy with some action) in which uptight federal agent Bullock and stubborn, sweary detective McCarthy are forced to go tandem on a convoluted drug case.

Sandra Bullock and Melissa McCarthy take on a drug ring in "The Heat." / GEMMA LA MANA

Their relationship — with Bullock's character inevitably loosening up, learning to appreciate binge drinking and, ultimately, running roughshod over habeas corpus and other pesky police rules — is mirrored in the casting. Bullock has spent most of her career playing it safe. She's never uglied herself up and rarely strayed from safe rom-com fare. Working in improv represents a challenge. Not only is she working blue, she has to keep up with McCarthy and a stable of old-hat ad-libbers. There is no male lead to lean on; the only romance is the platonic one between her and her female co-star.

She's not the only person trying something new. McCarthy is far more abrasive than elsewhere, and she really pushes toward borderline unlikable behavior. Director Paul Feig — who overcame a career of flops, including the cancelled "Freaks and Geeks," with the left-field "Bridesmaids" smash — isn't exactly a stylist. But he knows how to relax and encourage the best from his cast, while not entirely forgetting about technique. (He shoots in extra-"cinematic" cinemascope — and on film, not video.) Spotty at first, "The Heat" only gets better as the cast loosens into their roles and the gags begin to snowball, creating something worth seeing for reasons beyond the stars' gender.

Interview with the vampire

Insight. Gemma Arterton talks about difficulties making the female-driven bloodsucker film "Byzantium."

Gemma Arterton is a Bond girl, but being a Bond girl in the 21st century is different than in the 20th. A small bit in "Quantum of Solace" led to major roles in other big-budget productions, like "Prince of Persia," "Clash of the Titans" and "Hansel and Gretel: Witch Hunters." But she does smaller films, too, including two new ones. "Unfinished Song" is an English dramedy/weepie where she leads a chorus of old singers, including Vanessa Redgrave. And in "Byzantium," from "Interview with the Vampire" director Neil Jordan, she's a bloodsucker perpetually on the run with daughter Saoirse Ronan.

"Byzantium" is one of those vampire films that goes out of its way to avoid being a traditional vampire film.
I was approached really early on, when the script was still based on a play. It was totally different. The vampire aspect was a figment of the girl, Eleanor's, imagination. It was more about mental illness and abuse, with this girl saying to her psychologist that she was living with a vampire. What attracted me was this weird relationship between the girl and her mother. I was raised with two women, my sister and my mother, who was very young.

It's noticeably smaller in scale and budget than "Interview with the Vampire," which was mostly about men.
It's hard to make movies about women, especially when they're strong. It was really hard to make this. There was a big actor lined up for the Darvel part, which Sam Riley played. He dropped out at the last minute, and all the financing fell through — even though the part wasn't that big. We all agreed to do it for half the fee. It was hard, but we did it.

Gemma Arterton plays a vampire on the run from evil men in "Byzantium." / PATRICK REDMOND

When you're working on big-budget roles, do you try to infuse your personality into them?
You do it, and usually they cut it. That happens a lot. You get the first script and you think, "This is cool." Then they bring in 12 other writers, and then they change it. And then in the editing room, they change it totally. I find that really frustrating. When I do a play, you don't f— with a play. The play is the play. With film you can edit it and change it and do what you want. I got to a point in my career where I don't want to do this anymore. I made a decision not to do that type of film.

You just wrapped "The Voices," which was made by Marjane Satrapi ("Persepolis"), and you have another film with Luxembourgian filmmaker Anne Fontaine. Were you consciously seeking out women directors?
I never worked with a female director professionally before, even onstage. There are so many good ones out there. I don't want it to seem weird, but working with a woman is so much more liberating when you're a woman, because you don't have to worry about anything.

Going 007

On being a Bond girl

Yeah, I loved it. [Laughs] Because I wasn't really in it that much. I wasn't the main one. I always thought I'd just be a theater actor, so I thought it'd be cool to do a Bond film and then go back to theater, and then do that forever. People always say there's a curse of the Bond girl, but there are so many — like Rosamund Pike, I think she's such a good actress, and she's gone off and done other things. And Eva [Green]'s done loads. It's not really true anymore. It's like with any role. If you play Jason Bourne, you have to make sure you do something else. People like to put you in boxes. You have to keep changing it.

The banality of complexity

Docudrama. "Hannah Arendt" surveys a turbulent time in the political philosopher's life.

Among the fickle populace, political theorist Hannah Arendt's lasting legacy is her coining the phrase "the banality of evil," a term she dreamt up in a controversial piece she wrote about the 1961 trial of Adolf Eichmann. Still riding high on her philosophical blockbuster "The Origins of Totalitarianism," she was critical of the prosecution's showboaty tactics, but was even more struck by Eichmann himself. Rather than one of the twentieth century's craftiest monsters, he was, in her view, little more than a "bureaucrat" simply doing a job — a man of bewildering mediocrity.

The brouhaha that followed, with Arendt being called a self-hating Jew and losing close friends, is the subject of "Hannah Arendt," a docudrama starring Barbara Sukowa and directed by New German Cinema filmmaker Margarethe von Trotta. At times, "Hannah Arendt" honors the complexity of Arendt's piece. Much of the time, however, it reduces it, ironically, to a simplistic tussle between nice, thoughtful Arendt and her mean, snooty detractors. It turns Arendt into a mere victim, a poor woman who was just asking questions.

As with her last film with Sukowa, the Hildegard von Bingen biopic "Vision," "Hannah Arendt" is a reductive, indifferently filmed look at a proto-feminist. It, too, benefits greatly from its star's nuanced work. Arendt may be portrayed as a martyr, but Sukowa plays her as a full person: She's a restless thinker — she was Heidegger's favorite pupil — but she can also be arrogant, stubborn and insecure. It's a rich performance in a film that's often flat, visually and intellectually. Unlike other von Trottas, though, it can sporadically loosen up. In the margins is a loose portrait of a happy, carefree marriage between Arendt and her sickly husband (Axel Milberg), scenes of which stress the human it repeatedly tries to reduce to a sacrificial lamb.

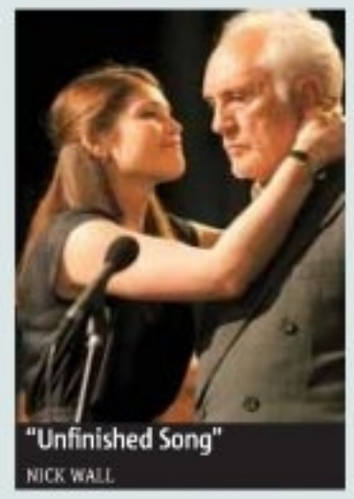
'Unfinished Song': General Zod goes musical



"Unfinished Song" NICK WALL

It was inevitable that some filmmaker would get around to making a fiction film of "Young@Heart," a gruesomely manipulative documentary about a geriatric chorus that sings punk, rock and other song types popular decades after they stopped paying attention to new music. "Unfinished Song" is exactly what one would expect.

The wild card is Terence Stamp. He plays Arthur, a professional grouch who only warms — and then only slightly — for his sweet but terminally cancerous wife Marion (Vanessa Redgrave). Because he hates fun in any form that isn't his weekly pub night with the lads, Arthur deplores Marion's singing group. It's no spoiler to reveal that inevitable tragedy strikes, albeit a touch earlier than expected, and that this development will force Arthur to melt and maybe (holy crap) sing himself.

Watching an actor as pissy as Stamp navigate a shameless tearjerker is as sadistically entertaining as it was watching Tommy Lee Jones suffer through the marriage counseling movie "Hope Springs." Both actors are clearly and amusingly uncomfortable and lost, their beliefs and attitudes challenged by every frame. MATT PRIGGE

Greatness in the margins

Music doc. "Twenty Feet from Stardom" gives backup singers the due they deserve.

Legend Darlene Love performs in "Twenty Feet from Stardom."
RADIUS-TWC

Review

'Twenty Feet from Stardom'

Director. Morgan Neville

Genre. Documentary

Rating. PG-13

"Twenty Feet from Stardom," a documentary about background singers in pop music from the 1950s on, ought to have been made decades ago, when most of its subjects could have profited off it while still young. It's better late than never, though — especially as many of them are still alive and very much kicking. The focus is the mostly black, gospel-bred singers who labored in the back of songs, not always wanting to seize the more stressful front.

They were mistreated, underloved. Darlene Love, of backup group The Blossoms, sang lead on Phil Spector's "He's a Rebel," only to find the song credited to another group, the Crystals. By the '70s, she was a cleaning woman, and decided to claim her rightful success when she heard herself on the radio while scrubbing a bathroom. (She's now in the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame.)

Others were even more ambitious. Merry Clayton — who recorded her part on The Rolling Stones' "Gimme Shelter" at 2 a.m., while pregnant and wearing rollers — tried her best to get a solo career. But despite the efforts of Clayton, producers and a supportive label, the public wasn't having it.

At one point, Clayton's "Gimme Shelter" crooning is isolated from the rest of the track. As her voice reaches the rafters, you can hear it cracking. Such imperfections speak to the passion and the ambition of these performers, who helped fill out songs in ways that aren't always immediately apparent. As they point out, their work is almost subliminally catchy — you hum their riffs without realizing it.

The film does more than highlight the underrecognized. The subjects talk of the shock of working with white stars, and wondering what mumbly, spastic Joe Cocker was about. When Lynyrd Skynyrd asked someone to back up the pro-South "Sweet Home Alabama," Clayton says she did it out of protest — their greatness would underline the shabbiness of the song's regressive worldview.

As its subjects did to songs, "Twenty Feet from Stardom" fills in a story that, for many, was only somewhat there.

Michael Solomonov is ready to disco. / PROVIDED

Dance. Chef Michael Solomonov is throwing a themed party at Morgan's Pier.

Like many chefs in this town, Michael Solomonov can't stay still. He's got his fingers in the pies of Zahav, Federal Donuts and Percy Street Barbecue. Yet somehow he finds time to host a pre-Fourth of July dinner party with a handful of his notable chef pals. And the fact that it's on a Monday just means you'll have to spend all weekend dreaming about what Solo & Co. are going to serve up.

The event, called Down the Shore, is now in its fourth year, and it's bigger and funkier than ever before. This year, it'll be at waterfront bar/restaurant/music venue Morgan's Pier.

"We wanted to do it in a bigger venue, because it's getting better and better," says Solomonov.

And as if having Solomonov and nine of Philly's sharpest chefs making you hors d'oeuvres and a buffet spread wasn't enough, there's a theme to the get-together.

"The first year it started as a Jersey Shore theme with a Journey cover band. Every year, we do something different," Solomonov explains. "Two years ago it was a '70s "Love Boat" theme, and last year was our best year yet. It was a zombie luau."

When asked why he went the themed-party route, Solomonov says, "I think we're just having a good time. When it started, there were lots of dinners happening. [Chef] Dave Katz made a pork dinner, then a duck dinner and a couple of collabo dinners. We thought it'd be cool to have a theme that wasn't animal-based."

This year? It's Klezmer Inferno. For those unfamiliar with the term, Klezmer is Eastern European Jewish music. West Philadelphia Orchestra will be performing to help get you in the party mood — and out onto the dance floor.

All the chefs

Solomonov isn't the only name you'll recognize in the kitchen. Taking part in Down the Shore this year — some returning and some fresh faces — are Jen Carroll (Bravo's "Top Chef"), Terence Feury (Tavro 13), David Katz (Mémé), Nick Macri (Southwark), Erin O'Shea (Percy Street Barbecue), Lucio Palazzo (La Calaca Feliz), George Sabatino (Morgan's Pier), John Taus (The Corner), and Peter Woolsey (Bistrot La Minette).

A round or three with Alie and Georgia

Cocktails. The hilarious duo shares tips for hosting a summer soiree.

Both ladies are really loving sipping on Negronis right now. Learn how to make their cocktails on www.metro.us. "Tripping Out" airs Fridays at 10:30 p.m. on the Cooking Channel. / SHANE REDSAR

Best friends Alie Ward and Georgia Hardstark wear vintage dresses and mix mean cocktails. They also play off each other's jokes without batting a lash — the two became Internet sensations for their hilarious video on concocting a McNuggetini, a joke cocktail complete with McNugget garnish. Now they're taking their irreverent act on the road with a new travel and food show, "Tripping Out with Alie & Georgia," on the Cooking Channel. "The show is about going on road trips with your best friend and really experiencing things together and being very goofy and honest," says Ward. They then bring those adventures back home to share with friends at house parties. "Friends are like having chosen family — so it's about how to celebrate, but still do it in a way that's relaxed and fun." We get their tips on making our shindigs half as exciting as theirs.

Summer sips

Alie: I've been an advocate for wine spritzers for years. Wine coolers are a totally different thing. A wine spritzer, which is a nice dry white wine mixed with sparkling water and maybe a little fruit is such a good summer sipping cocktail. You'll stay hydrated, it's not too sweet. And if you're not much of a beer drinker, it's perfect.

Georgia: I'm totally a beer drinker and at first I was like, "No way, that's such a girly drink." But now I love them. Another great one is soda water over ice with a couple dashes of bitters. It's great for your designated drivers.

Tip

Creating your own cocktail

Georgia: It's so much easier than it sounds. It really comes down to making a play on something. So if there's a cocktail that you enjoy, try a different flavor of bitters in it instead of coming up with something crazy. Start with something you do like, and then be a little more creative. And a really fun, punny name always helps, too.

Theme it up

Alie: We help host an annual B.Y.O.L., a "bring your own lobster" party, which is one of my favorite events. Having a theme really ties things together. So whether it's everyone bringing their favorite white wine or a side from their childhood, it gives people something to talk about. It's not just going to be a group showing up and chatting to the best of their abilities.

Georgia: I totally agree. When there's a theme — we're doing a daytime pancake party — it makes it more focused. People know if they're going to bring sides it has to tie into that. But we're definitely not stuffy when it comes to themes. Parties are an excuse to have fun so you don't want to stress anyone out.

Make a batch

Alie: Being able to make a big batch of something is really helpful. And it's fun to just have one kind of signature cocktail for your event. That way everyone can try the rum punch and can have that to talk about.

Jamie-Lynn Sigler sobbed at the funeral of James Gandolfini on Thursday in New York City. / GETTY

1 Stars and strangers alike attend Gandolfini funeral

Jamie-Lynn Sigler, who played Tony's daughter Meadow on "The Sopranos," sobbed in front of the Cathedral Church of St. John the Divine in NYC on Thursday morning at the funeral of James Gandolfini.

The New York Times reports that almost the entire cast of "The Sopranos" was there, including Edie Falco, Joe Pantoliano, Dominic Chianese, Steve Schirripa, Aida Turturro, Vincent Curatola and Michael Imperioli. New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie, Hilaria and Alec Baldwin, John Turturro and David Chase were also on hand to say goodbye to the famed actor.

In a somewhat unheard-of move, the public was also allowed to attend. The Times reports that two lines formed before the service: One for those who knew Gandolfini personally and one for those who didn't. One of those waiting in that line was fan Gwen Gibbs, who drove from Kentucky to give her respects. "I am not sure how to put it in words," she says. "He made the character of Tony Soprano feel like a real person, like someone you knew. When I heard he had died, I hoped it was a hoax."

2 Kat Von D and Deadmau5 are over

What starts on Twitter ends on Twitter for Kat Von D and DJ Deadmau5.

The celebrity duo became engaged over the social networking site six months ago. Deadmau5 tweeted a picture of a black diamond engagement ring adorned with skulls, writing, "I can't wait for Christmas so … Katherine Von Drachenberg, will you marry me?" Von D accepted.

Six months later, they are kaput.

"Man, I'm a fool," Von D wrote on Twitter Wednesday night. "Cheating on your loved one is the most hurtful thing one could do. I hate to have to admit, that this relationship is indeed over."

Deadmau5, whose real name is Joel Zimmerman, decided to then take the conversation off of Twitter and on to a more personal space — Facebook. He had "relations with another woman" during a break the couple took.

"Following that, Kat and I reconciled and I acknowledged being intimate with another person while we were estranged," he continued. "We did move past those issues and I proposed to Kat in mid-December. At the end of June, it was clear that the relationship was not working and we mutually ended the engagement. I was not, at any point, unfaithful to Kat during our time together."

Man, if a grown man who performs house music while dressed like a deranged Mickey Mouse and a reality TV star can't make it, who can?

3 Messing on sneezing and summer

Now that "Smash" is over, Debra Messing is doing what everyone does when they lose their job — become a paid celebrity spokesperson. In this case, it's for Zyrtec.

"When I became an actress, allergies became a real problem because it would affect my ability to work," she said, in the interview we got through the pharmaceutical company (welcome to the world of celebrity interviewing!). "I can [now] do the recreational things I want as well as work outside."

So what is she planning? "Spending some lazy time with my son [Roman]," she said. "He's worked really hard in school and I've worked really hard on 'Smash,' so just being able to spend quality time together is what I want."

4 Depp's daughter is over the Biebs?

Hate to break it to you, Biebs, but Lily-Rose Depp is developing a more refined musical palate. Johnny Depp says his 14-year-old daughter doesn't find the pop star as crush-worthy as she once did. "She thinks that Bieber is obviously talented and stuff, but she's now moving into other arenas of music in her life," Depp tells David Letterman during an interview. "She prefers I didn't go to concerts with her, especially don't take her to concerts. No, out of the question."

Horoscope

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22. If you don't expect too much from a social connection, you won't be disappointed. You should still be friendly with everyone you meet.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22. It's best not to make any last-minute changes to an important matter. Things are likely to work out as you anticipate.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Your best adviser might not be someone to whom you usually go for counsel. Before seeking advice from others, try a close friend.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22. In a matter that directly affects your work, don't underestimate your competition. This does not mean that all your adversaries are stronger.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21. A wise associate might influence you to change your mind. Don't berate yourself for doing so.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21. A pleasant surprise is in store when new life is breathed into an endeavor you were about to write off.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan 20. Take advantage of an opportunity to catch up with an acquaintance whom you've been neglecting of late.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb 18. Follow your judgment regarding an important career decision. Advice from others could only muddy the waters.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20. There is a strong possibility that you will learn a valuable lesson. The knowledge you'll gain will be used later.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20. Both your perceptions and your logic are sharper than usual. Both will help you make decisions.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21. Even if you aren't an original thinker, chances are someone you hang out with is. You'll know how to put her ideas to good use.

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20. Anything that calls for a financial risk might not work out. However, involvements requiring hard work will pay off reliably. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Metro's left side gets a workout

Yesterday, Metro underscored the existence of liberal bias in journalism. A page devoted only to celebrities who feel a certain way was the most blatant. But all of the articles went beyond reporting the news of the Supreme Court striking down the Defense of Marriage Act and into offering opinions. As a supporter of civil unions and equal rights for gays under the law, I feel that the sacrament of matrimony is between one man and one woman. Metro [on June 27] tried to equate that opinion with supporting segregation. No, these are two completely different issues. KEVIN METZ, VIA EMAIL

Keep DOMA in perspective

Some perspective on the recent Supreme Court rulings may be helpful. DOMA being struck down doesn't mean religious institutions now have to conduct same-sex marriages, merely that they will be recognized by the law as equal to any other between two people. And the court did not strike down Proposition 8, but simply ruled that the defendants lacked legal standing to sue; Prop 8 was already repealed by the voters. JOSEPH CONNELL, VIA EMAIL

Flyers can't afford to mess up this draft

NHL. Paul Holmgren might trade up or down, but either way, the GM has to make an impact Sunday.

Just how important is picking the right player in a draft?

Ask the Blackhawks, who chose Patrick Kane No. 1 in the 2007 draft. Two Stanley Cups later, Kane & Co. are atop the hockey world, while Philadelphia — a team that chose James van Riemsdyk at No. 2, then traded him — is now trying to recover from missing the playoffs entirely.

First step in that recovery will be Sunday's draft in Newark, N.J., where the Flyers hold the No. 11 pick. It would have been higher if Peter Laviolette's club hadn't gone 4-0 after being officially eliminated, costing them three spots in the draft.

But from all indications, this is considered a deep draft. That means the Flyers, desperately in need of a young, mobile defenseman, may actually find one. But, as any GM in any sport will warn, that doesn't always mean they'll pass on the best player available, even if he plays a different position.

"Where we are at, we'll get a good player at 11," said Holmgren, who wouldn't rule out he possibility of trading up or down. "From the depth of our franchise, probably it [defense] is an area that we lack. But I am not going to waver. If we get to the 11th pick and the guy we like best is a forward, that's who we are going to draft."

At the same time, Holmgren said projecting how a 17- or 18-year-old kid will advance in a couple of years is an inexact science.

"You've got to envision how he's going to grow as a player in 2 to 3 years," said Holmgren, who revealed that he wasn't informed he'd been drafted by the Flyers in 1975 (at No. 108) until a few weeks after the draft. "Both physically and mentally, a lot of things can happen. We'll have to see how it all shakes out."

If it shakes out with one of a trio of highly regarded blue-liners slipping on an orange-and-black jersey Sunday afternoon, Holmgren probably won't be disappointed. Two to watch are Ryan Pulock, whom he described as a "bomb," and Finn Rasmus Ristolainen, who may be the most ready to play at the NHL level. The third is rugged Darnell Nurse, whose claim to fame is that his uncle happens to be Donovan McNabb.

FANTASY

ADAM LEVITAN, JUST A GUY LIVING THE FANTASY

METRO'S FANTASY GURU BREAKS IT ALL DOWN FOR YOU EVERY WEEK

NBA draft news

Anthony Davis and Damian Lillard were two of the best in fantasy hoops last year. There are no such prospects this time. Nerlens Noel and Alex Len are rehabbing injuries and raw offensively. Victor Oladipo and Otto Porter are known for defense. Trey Burke's size has been questioned. Yawn.

PATRIOTS OFFENSE LOOKS AVERAGE

The Patriots have long been the NFL's offensive geniuses, thinking outside the box to create mismatches to put crooked numbers on the board. That genius is about to be put to the test. Following Wednesday's release of Aaron Hernandez, the Patriots arguably have the worst group of pass-catchers in the entire NFL. What's Tom Brady to do?

Moving tight ends. Jake Ballard is technically next up on the tight end depth chart, but he is not Hernandez's backup. Last season, Hernandez lined up in the slot 41 percent of the time and out wide on 18 percent of his snaps. The lumbering Ballard is not capable of filling that role. Expect Julian Edelman to get a long look at extended snaps. He was eating into Wes Welker's workload early last season before a hand injury stopped that momentum. Ballard will only have value if Rob Gronkowski starts the year on the PUP list. Tim Tebow is not a tight end.

Danny Boy. Danny Amendola was already in line for a big role as Wes Welker's clear-cut replacement. Now that Hernandez is gone and Gronk is in doubt, he's a threat to lead the entire NFL in targets.

Sleeper alert. The mess at the "F" and "Y" positions in the Patriots' offense doesn't directly affect the battle happening at "X." That's the outside receiver spot, where Aaron Dobson will battle Mike Jenkins and fellow rookie Josh Boyce. Dobson is the one to watch at camp.

Patriots quarterback Tom Brady will be throwing to plenty of unproven targets this season. / GETTY IMAGES

MLB pickups

Keep these names in mind if you are tweaking your roster:

- Jedd Gyorko, 2B, Padres. Expected off the DL this weekend. Had eight homers and 17 RBIs in the 35 games prior.
- Nathan Eovaldi, SP, Marlins. Finally healthy, Eovaldi has 10 strikeouts in his first 12 innings. Can hit 98 mph.

New hero emerges for charging Union in June winning streak

MLS. Conor Casey was a catalyst last weekend for the Blue and Gold in their march up the Eastern standings.

The spotlights were on, the stage was set and an unsung hero emerged to lead the Union to a 3-0 win over the Red Bulls.

Forward Conor Casey netted two of his five goals on the season in a rout of the division rivals to move the Union (7-5-4) up into second place in the Eastern Conference.

"Obviously, as a forward, it's always my goal to score," said Casey. "Jack's [McInerney] been on fire all year, so it's nice to be able to contribute a little bit and take some pressure off of him."

The Union have found success at PPL Park in June. They beat Columbus, 3-0, June 5 before routing the Red Bulls. On June 29, they will face FC Dallas (8-3-5) in a stiff test. Casey thinks if he and his teammates stick to the game plan, they'll find success.

"It starts on defense," he said. "We need to get people back defensively and play strong as a unit, and then take advantage of the chances that we get on offense. It's worked so far, and I think we'll have a good chance to win any game if we can stick to that plan.

A win against Dallas would give the Union 28 points. If the Montreal Impact lose, the Union would sit one point below them for first place in the East.

JEFF MCMENAMIN

Casey

Congrats, Jack

Jack McInerney was named to the U.S. men's national team roster for 2013 CONCACAF Gold Cup.

- Casey commented: "He's had a really successful season so far, and he's proved that he deserves a chance with the national team."

Phillies. Living up to hype, Brown best story in tough season

Silver linings have been few and far between for the Phillies this season. The Mike Adams signing is a bust. Roy Halladay may never throw another meaningful pitch. Cole Hamels is on pace for a 20-loss season.

Domonic Brown surely is the best story of the first half. Brown, who hit his 20th homer of the season Tuesday night, is silencing doubters with his long balls, plus 54 RBIs and competent play in left field.

"I just felt so confident coming into this season," Brown said. "I made some changes. I cut down on my swing and went in with a good approach."

He also showed up to spring training in good health after injuries plagued his last two seasons. The can't-miss prospect went from the fourth-best prospect in baseball three years ago to a player on the bubble.

Manager Charlie Manuel didn't guarantee Brown a thing in spring training, but the quiet player who turned down a football scholarship at the University of Miami clearly earned a starting job in the spring.

"I watched him in the spring, and I saw a different player," Manuel said. "He was getting there. Everything was coming together. The last thing that arrives is the power."

That arrived in May, when Brown hit 12 homers, but didn't draw a single walk.

"Some people said that was a problem in his game, but it isn't," an NL scout said. "He didn't walk in May because pitchers didn't believe he is that good. They challenged Brown, and he made them pay."
